WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

*** Hot and Dry Through Wednesday, with Locally Gusty North Winds through Midday Tuesday ***

High pressure will build over the region today and move off to the east late Tuesday. Inland areas can expect hot and dry weather, with temperatures 6-12 degrees above normal and RH as low as 5-15% in the driest valleys. Northerly downslope winds will gust to 25 mph or so in the Sacramento Valley and surrounding foothills through midday Tuesday. Late on Tuesday as the high moves east a weak Pacific low pressure trough will approach the coast. SW-NW winds will increase in coastal regions and through passes, straits and the delta into the western Sacramento Valley, with peak gusts to 30 mph there Tuesday night and Wednesday. Inland areas outside of the influence of the incoming marine air will remain hot and dry on Wednesday.

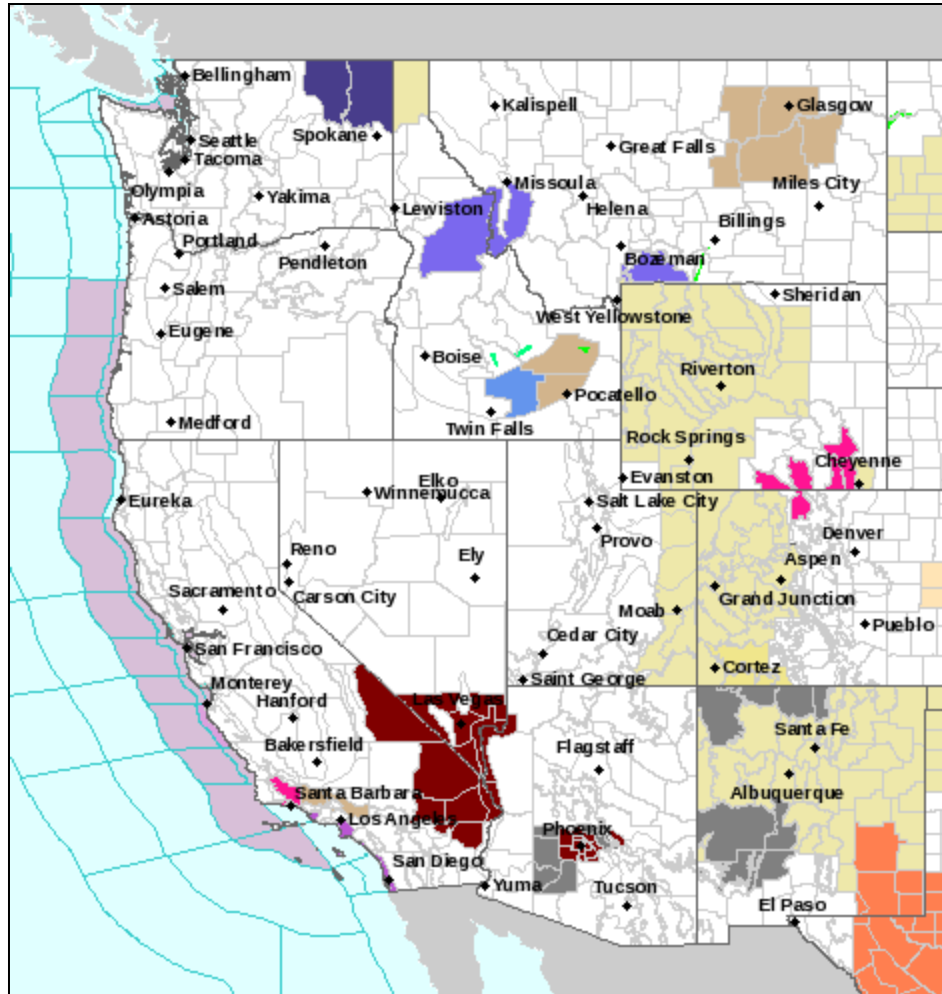

The approaching low pressure trough will deepen over the region Thursday through Saturday. Although models are inconsistent on the timing and strength of this incoming trough, it looks like it could produce temperatures closer to normal with higher humidity Thursday through Sunday, and a chance of mountain showers and thunderstorms Friday through Sunday.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

A ridge of high pressure centered over the Desert Southwest will bring a warming and drying trend to the region through Wednesday. Maximum temperatures will be in the 70s to low 80s across the mountains and mid 80s to mid 90s in the valleys today, with upper 70s and 80s in the mountains and 90s to 102 in the valleys Tuesday and Wednesday. Minimum humidity will be mainly in the teens away from the coastal areas today, except there will be widespread single digit humidity across the deserts. Minimum humidity will be in the single digits and teens away from the coastal areas Tuesday and Wednesday. A Pacific trough will drop down the West Coast bringing a significant cooling trend and an increase in humidity Thursday through this weekend. Temperatures will be well below normal this weekend. Westerly afternoon and evening winds of 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will surface across the desert passes Wednesday through this weekend.
